

DULL SESSION OF MART; EGGS REACH NEW LOW

Today's mid-January session of the Farmers market was dull, with demand off and little change shown in most prices.

The price of eggs was the lowest in some time, large browns selling for 60 cents a dozen and large whites priced at 65 cents a dozen. Mediums sold for about 60 cents a dozen.

Supplies of pork were large, but business dull. Sausage was 60 cents a pound compared with a previous price of 65 cents a pound. Scapple sold for 20 to 25 cents a pound. Lard was 26 and 28 cents a pound. Other pork prices were:

Ham at 65 Cents
Loins, 90 cents a pound; roast ham, 70 cents a pound; neck roast, 55 cents a pound; shoulder roast, 65 cents a pound; backbone, 50 cents a pound; ribs, 45 and 50 cents a pound; side meat, 55 cents a pound; pigs' feet, 15 and 20 cents; pudding, 50 cents a pound; liver, 50 cents a pound.

A few fresh hams were offered for sale at 65 cents a pound. They weighed approximately 15 pounds. Mostly hams have been available only on order. There was some smoked sausage for sale at 65 cents a pound.

The price of dressed chickens remained the same, 65 cents for roasters and 70 cents for capons. Butter was still 70 cents a pound.

Potatoes, Apples Same
Potatoes and apples showed no change, potatoes selling for $2.50 a bushel and apples from $3.50 to $4 a bushel, or 40 to 50 cents a half peck. Turnips were 10 cents a quart box; beets, 15 cents a quarter peck; parsnips 15 and 25 cents a box; onions, 15 cents a box.

Other items included apple butter, 60 cents; sweet cream, 35 cents a pint; potato salad 20 cents a pint; cottage cheese, 20 cents a pint; pies, 40 and 50 cents; cookies, 25 cents a dozen; rolls, 25 cents a pan.

Mrs. M. T. Dill Dies Suddenly

Mrs. Lillian Dill, wife of Dr. Matthew T. Dill, Biglerville dentist, was stricken suddenly while driving her auto on Penn street in Biglerville about noon today and was dead when Dr. P. J. McGlynn, Biglerville physician who was summoned immediately, arrived at the scene.

Reports stated that Mrs. Dill, taken suddenly ill, drove her car to the side of the street and stopped before she lost consciousness.

Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams county coroner, was called to investigate.

Mrs. Dill was accompanied by Mrs. Raymond Kuhn, Biglerville, when she was stricken. The car was stopped about one block west of the Dill home which is on the main street in Biglerville.

She had been in her usual health this morning.

Says 'Tad' Lincoln And Everett Had Role In Creation Of 85th Anniversary Gettysburg Stamp

Edward Everett, America's silver-tongued orator who delivered the "principal" address at the dedication of the Gettysburg National cemetery on November 19, 1863, and "lisp" Tad Lincoln, helped create the Lincoln-Gettysburg special commemorative three-cent postage stamp, issued here last November 19, according to G. I. Geiffuss, writing in "Western Stamp Collector," a magazine-newspaper published for stamp collectors at Albany, Ore.

"There are those who say that the commemorative stamp dedicated to the anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address merely is a measure between opposites and that it comes to the world's stamp albums because fame hides behind the shadow of the 16th president, but those of Edward Everett, son of the silver tongue, and of little lisp "Tad" Lincoln also lurk behind the new adhesive.

"The dead slept majestically at Cemetery ridge that July of 1863, amid serene lilacs and lush red and white roses, bridal wreath, dogwood and honeysuckle. They rested behind the long graveyard gate where a sign admonished that hunting was not permitted within.

"Certainly, that sign was destined to be forgotten by history. But there came General Robert E. Lee, Longstreet and Pickett. It was the beginning of a stamp.

"Suddenly they were upon General George Gordon Meade, upon Gettysburg with a plague of embattled pilgrims intent on disturbing the peace of men and ghosts (Please Turn to Page 4)

Carnivals! Carnivals! Carnivals!

"That's about all we heard last summer, one after another. Let's hope that we will not be pestered with such a motley lot of undesirables again this year.

Out of the three which were given permits to show here less than $500 remained in the community from the "percentage gate."

Carnivals and circuses are all right in their place but few if any of the decent ones can afford to come to a small community like Gettysburg and net a legitimate profit.

Certainly Gettysburg does not deserve to be pestered with such an assortment of alleged performers.

It's a hollow triumph—and a painful one—for the dog winning an encounter with a porcupine.

Graphic proof of that is offered by the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association, which reports the removal of 319 porcupine quills from a dog during an operation that lasted more than two hours.

Some of the quills were over three inches long and were deeply imbedded in the flesh. Several were lodged in the tongue and gums, making it impossible for the dog to take food until they were removed.

A kiss, Oliver Herford said, is a course of procedure, cunningly devised for the mutual stoppage of conversation at a point where words are superfluous.

COUNTYMAN 13TH IN SPUD GROWING

Charles W. Meckley, of Adams county, is 13th in production among all growers in the state, it was announced at the annual Potato Growers Association program at the Farm Show in Harrisburg.

Meckley, who operates a farm near Hanover, secured 580 bushels of potatoes per acre from his fields, to be among the top growers in the state. Forty-one men in the state produced over 400 bushels per acre last season and all who beat that 400 mark were honored by the Potato Growers' association. Only 12 farmers had higher yields than Meckley was able to secure, but the top man, Victor J. Denlinger, of Lancaster county produced 773.6 bushels of potatoes per acre.

The county's three 4-H Baby beef contestants all received awards at the Farm show. The three Aberdeen Angus steers sent by the county club to Harrisburg to compete against cattle from throughout the state, were selected some time ago at a show held by the county club. At that time the three top steers were selected for the state competition. Thomas Murren, Hanover R. 4, won twelfth place in the light heavy-weight competition and Dale Stites, Fairfield R. 1, secured fourteenth place in the same competition. Connie Schroll, Fairfield R. 2, won fifteenth place in the light weight division.

The Rev. Mr. Coffelt, who gave a half peck of the turnips to friends here, said he had about two bushels of growing turnips in his garden.

Credit for the turnips, a fall crop, is given to the comparatively mild winter being experienced here to date.

Mrs. Dayton Mason, Harrisburg road, reports that on Friday she picked a dandelion in full bloom in her garden.

MISS DIGGIN, LOCAL NURSE, WEDS FRIDAY

The marriage of Miss Louise Diggin, Hughesville, to Delmar Kime, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kime, Bendersville, was solemnized Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at Bethlehem Lutheran church, Bendersville. The Rev. Dr. O. D. Coble, pastor, officiated.

The bride, a graduate of Hughesville high school, is a member of the staff of nurses at the Warner hospital. She served with a nurse corps during the war.

Mr. Kime graduated from Biglerville high school, served with the Army Air Force during the war and is now a student at Gettysburg college.

300 Indians And Native Blacks Killed In Durban Race Riots

Durban, Union of South Africa, Jan. 15 (AP)—Three hundred Indians and native blacks are believed to have been killed in two days of race rioting in the Durban area. Nearly 400 have been injured.

The rioting ebbed somewhat today after the intervention of South African armed forces but sporadic outbreaks occurred in several suburbs.

Officials in Johannesburg made the new casualty estimate. They said a majority of the Indians are evacuating Durban, fleeing to surrounding villages with their few remaining possessions.

Police arranged areas of refuge where the Indians could come for protection. More than 200 police reinforcements already have arrived in Durban.

The fighting was between native blacks and Indians. One European (white) was killed and a dozen injured as a result of the two-day riot. It was the first time South African military units have been called to quell racial violence. The damage was estimated at $1,000,000.

Defense Minister F. C. Erasmus wired Durban that if the situation grew worse he would proclaim a state of emergency.

The South African air force was held in readiness to move extra police to Durban. Five radio cars and 100 policemen already have been sent from Pretoria by air.

The Indians involved, a minority group in South Africa, are immigrants and the descendants of immigrants from India.

Quiet was restored in Durban at about 3 a. m.

Guns and stones, fire and clubs have been used in the clashes over the last 48 hours.

Hundreds are destitute and homeless. Whole streets of Indian houses and stores have been burned down or looted.

The rioting broke out Thursday, when a young native boy was injured by an Indian market peddler. He was taken to a hospital and reports spread that he had been killed.

The incident snowballed into wholesale native attacks on the Indians. Whole families were slain in their homes.

Edward C. Freed Is Presented Check For 25 Years Of Service At Annie M. Warner Hospital

Edward C. Freed, who 25 years ago found 24-hour-a-day duty at the Warner hospital "play after working so many years on the farm," this morning was presented with a check for over $200 in honor of his quarter of a century of service to the hospital. C. A. Bixler, president of the board made the presentation.

Doctors, nurses, staff members and former patients donated to the fund for "Freed" who now confines his activities at the hospital to a mere ten to 14 hour day. He holds the title of "maintenance foreman" but his duties include about everything except actual medical practice.

This morning's ceremony was held in the directors' room at the nurses' home and marked not only the 25th anniversary of Mr. Freed's association with the hospital but also marked his 65th birthday.

Secure Hospital Position

A son of the late Aaron and Sarah Freed, he was born and reared near Arendtsville, then left for New York state where he was a farmer for 17 years. He returned home for a visit and while here read an advertisement in The Gettysburg Times stating that a janitor was wanted at the then four-year-old hospital. He decided to apply on the off chance that he might get the post and be able to live in his native county. There were 20 applicants for the post but the efforts of the late Crist Klepper, of Arendtsville, Robert Bream, of Cashtown, and the father of Dr. Bruce N. Wolff, convinced S. G. Bigham, then president of the board, that Freed would be the best man for the job.

He moved into the hospital and took up his janitorial duties and shortly thereafter started his work of being general all-around-man, "good right hand," and general aide at the hospital. The one male nurse at the hospital died shortly after Freed began as janitor and Freed was pressed into duties as an orderly in addition to being janitor.

Fortunately, Freed recalls, business was somewhat routine right at that period. The doctors, especially Dr. "Mac" Dickson, gave Freed instruction in what they wanted him to do as an orderly, and the multiplicity and nature of Freed's jobs grew gradually.

For 14 years he was the only male (Please Turn to Page 3)

Letter to the Editor

January 14, 1949

Dear Sir: In your Thursday's report of Dr. Gifford's address to the Women's club on socialized medicine, Dr. Gifford is reported to have stated that "in England" the government has taken over all private practice, the hospitals, drug firms, convalescent homes, appliance manufacturers and dentists." It is not my intention to advance arguments for or against socialized medicine, but I am concerned that misunderstanding regarding conditions in England be not disseminated (which I know is far from Dr. Gifford's intention), and I feel that the expression "the government has taken over" does not give a true picture of the facts.

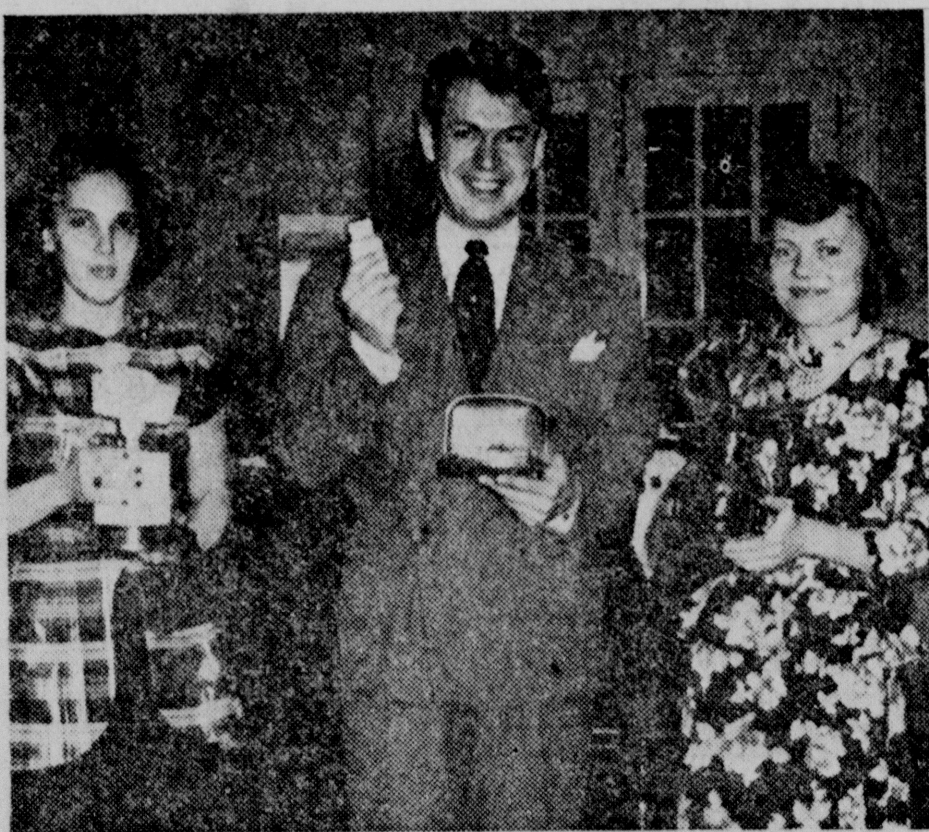

The government settles all medical bills at rates previously agreed upon by a committee of doctors and laymen by means of quarterly check-ups paid to doctors, dentists and chemists (druggists), which is perhaps what Dr. Gifford means by the government taking over. But the other side of the picture is the fact that the scheme is voluntary.

May I quote from an article by New York Times's reliable and objective London reporter, Herbert Matthews, in last Sunday's Magazine Section:

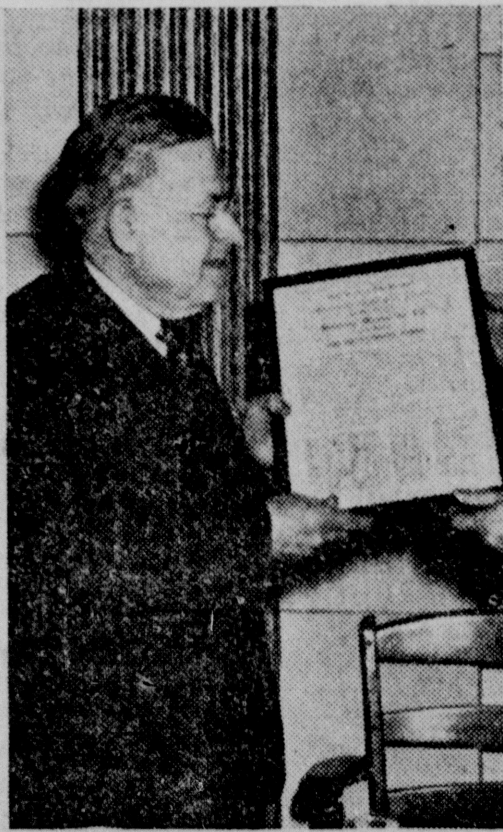

"Everyone under the health scheme is entitled to choose his doctor and change him at will. Doctors can accept or reject anybody. The scheme is completely voluntary and the public and practitioners alike can stay out of it if they wish." (According to figures quoted by Herbert Matthews, approximately 14 per cent of the doctors, 13 per (Please Turn to Page 2)

49 FARM SHOW CLOSES WITH RECORDS SET

By LEONARD A. UNGER
Harrisburg, Jan. 15 (AP)—Success of the 1949 state Farm Show provided a significant signpost today for Pennsylvania's agricultural future.

A record crowd of 580,000 visitors saw 10,000 exhibits of all phases of Pennsylvania farm life during the five-day exposition which ended yesterday.

"The size of the crowds and their interest in the quality of our farm products prove that Pennsylvania is advancing as one of the nation's outstanding agricultural states," said Giles Horst, state agriculture secretary.

Many Records Set
Horst, chairman of the state Farm Show Commission, joined with other members in describing the attendance as "remarkable."

"This becomes important in view of the fact that there is no admission charge and no midway or other entertainment features except those provided by rural people."

Closing of the exposition saw establishment of a series of new records in the biggest show of its kind ever held here.

The all-time attendance mark of 580,000, compared with the previous high of 540,000 set in 1947. Wednesday's turnout of 155,000 set a new record for a single day crowd. Fair weather throughout the week was the biggest contributary factor.

The exposition ended shortly after the grand champion 4-H baby beef steer was sold for $140 a pound equalling the all-time record price set in 1948.

Seventeen-year-old Jay Nissley, Manheim R. D. 3, Lancaster county, received $1,519 for the 1,085-pound steer which took top honors in competition with 140 4-H club entrants.

Rught Brothers, Bolivar, Westmoreland county, outbid other buyers in quest of the fuzzy-coated, coal-black champion nicknamed "Midnight."

Lambs Bring 9 Cents
Nissley said he intends to use the money "to help buy an automobile for the family." "Midnight," was the first steer the youth had ever exhibited.

The Economy Meat market, York, bought the runnerup animal, the reserve grand champion owned by Ray Busch, Easton R. D. 3. The Aberdeen Angus was knocked down for 67 1/2 cents a pound.

The same market also outbid other buyers for the grand champion 4-H club pen of lambs. The lambs, consigned by 11-year-old Jean Graybill, Manheim, Lancaster county, brought 96 cents a pound.

cent of the dentists and seven per cent of the public have elected to remain outside the scheme. "For his medicines the patient still takes his prescription to the druggist of his choice. . . . You can join the health scheme whether you are insured or not. . . . If you elect to register for the health service and are uninsured, you pay nothing."

Mr. Matthews gives a great deal more information both in favor of the National Health Service and against it, and to quote him again, "American critics or champions who look across the Atlantic for arguments to oppose or support President Truman's plan to introduce compulsory health insurance will find whatever they are seeking. The A.M.A. will be able to produce a mass of testimony from British doctors on how badly the scheme is working. Conversely, the Federal Security Administration should be able to compile a still more formidable body of testimony from patients, druggists, dentists and many doctors to prove that a nation of nearly 50 million can take care of the health of every man, woman and child from teething to senility."

So we, the people, are precisely where we were before—in a fog. Yours truly,

PARATROOPER SAVES TRAINEES

Fayetteville, N. C., Jan. 15 (AP)—A veteran paratrooper prodded 36 trainees out of a stricken "Flying Boxcar" and then rode the ship until it crashed and burned. The crew of three was killed.

Sgt. Robert Lee Hodgkiss of Mt. Pleasant, Ohio, the 24-year-old jump master, who was unhurt, told interviewers:

"I heard the jump bell and knew there was trouble because we were only halfway to the drop zone. The other guys knew it too but they were calm."

"We didn't have time to final check parachute harness. I just yelled 'standup! hookup! jump!'"

The 36 men cleared the plane yesterday in about seven seconds, using doors on both sides, Hodgkiss said.

After his men "hit the silk," the 24-year-old combat veteran said the plane was too low for him to jump. "I braced, sat down in a canvas jump seat, and thought 'This is it. What of my wife and child?'" —sloughed into the scrub pine and sandhills and "we probably would have made it except for two lousy trees," the sergeant said.

The plane sheared off one tree at the base and uprooted another and then caught fire.

The paratroopers were members of the 82nd Airborne Division based at Pope Field near here. The plane was from the 37th Troop Carrier Squadron, 316th Carrier Group at the Green (S. O.) Air Force Base.

SWEDEN BEING LURED FROM REDS BY NEW OFFER

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Officials expressed hope today that a new "Allies only" label on American arms will coax Sweden off the neutrality fence in the cold war against Russia.

State Department Press Officer Michael McDermott told a news conference yesterday that the United States cannot spare military equipment for nations unwilling to enter a defense alliance against Communist expansion.

Officials said that was aimed straight at Sweden, where press reports have taken the opposite tack. Sweden has suggested that her northern neighbors cold-shoulder Western alliance bids and join her instead in a policy of strict neutrality.

Got Old Planes
The State Department followed up McDermott's statement with an announcement that last summer Sweden received 30 P-51 fighter planes which are no longer in operating condition but which can be used to replace parts in planes the Swedes already own.

Stockholm reports said earlier this week that Sweden had urged Norway and Denmark to spurn the projected North Atlantic military alliance for an iron-clad Scandinavian military pact. In any case, Sweden indicated, she would remain aloof from the treaty being negotiated by the United States, Canada and five European nations.

But even the Scandinavian alliance plan was regarded by diplomatic authorities here as a long step in Swedish policy, which once called for strict no-alliance neutrality.

State Department officials reportedly feel that in today's divided world such a purely Scandinavian defensive arrangement would not work.

SEEK RELEASE OF 3,000 TROOPS

Rhodes, Jan. 15 (AP)—Egyptians began negotiations today for the release of an estimated 3,000 Egyptian troops trapped by Israeli forces at Faluja, in Palestine's Negev desert.

This was the second major item on the agenda for armistice negotiations aimed at ending Israeli-Egyptian warfare and bringing full peace to the Holy Land.

Both sides agreed yesterday, in conferences under the eye of Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, the United Nations acting Palestine mediator, to halt all offensive military operations during the period of the talks and to respect each other's national security.

Spokesmen said details of the armistice preamble adopted yesterday would not be made public until the discussions end—perhaps next week.

Point No. 2 of the Agenda calls for implementation of the Security Council resolution of November 4 and 16, which ordered both Jews and Arabs to withdraw to positions held October 14 and to negotiate for peace.

The withdrawal order to the Egyptians actually was just a gesture. Jewish troops had driven them back, mile after mile, since launching their October 15 offensive and were hammering at Egyptian border positions when cease fire orders came last week.

Lind Likely To Get Agriculture Post

James F. Lind, newly elected congressman from Adams, York and Franklin counties, is almost certain of a place on the house of representatives' agriculture committee, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington.

The AP reports that Pennsylvania's 11 new Democratic congressmen, of whom Lind is one, are "expected to get the House committee appointments they sought. The five holdovers are certain to retain their old committee assignments with several additional jobs."

Lind has asked for a place on the agriculture committee.

TIENTSIN FALLS TO COMMUNISTS AFTER BARRAGE

By HAROLD K. MILKS
Shanghai, Jan. 15 (AP)—The great commercial city of Tientsin, battered by Communist shells and afire in several places, fell to Chinese Reds today in what may be the crowning blow to Chiang Kai-shek.

Victorious troops of Red Gen. Lin Piao, conqueror of Manchuria, seized the burning city after a fierce artillery barrage that devastated old landmarks and many buildings.

Radio reports from the "gateway to North China" described the city of 3,000,000 as one of death and desolation. Many civilians were killed. Hospital were jammed with wounded.

U. S. Staff Safe
Robert Smyth of Berkeley, Calif., U. S. consul general, radioed that all of his staff was safe.

"So far as can be ascertained all other Americans (about 80 in number) are safe," Smyth radioed.

Down broad Victoria Road, which winds through the heart of the former British concession, the Red conquerors marched, stopping in front of the U. S. consulate to fire their rifles into the air.

Before the United States Information Service office in the former French concession, a few blocks away, they stopped and fired their rifles into the air again as Americans watched from the roof of the building.

Frees Troops for New Assault
Confirmation of Tientsin's fall came in messages received in Nanking, where the blow to the Nationalist cause is certain to have terrific repercussions.

Peiping, 90 miles northeast of Tientsin and headquarters of Gen. Fu Tso-yi, Nationalist North China commander, reported only that the Reds had entered Tientsin.

Victory at Tientsin frees Lin's troops for an all out assault on the port of Tangku, 27 miles down the Hai river, and Taku, rail terminal, opposite Tangku on the river front.

Peiping May Be Next
Peiping may be the next big city attacked by the infuriated Reds, whose leader, Mao Tze-tung, only yesterday laid down an eight-point peace program and punctuated it with the boast that more military victories would bring Chiang's government to its knees.

The reaction of officialdom in Nanking to his eight "peace terms," according to James D. White, Associated Press correspondent there, was to vanish into meetings including one of the cabinet.

The meetings, said White, had been scheduled previously but took on an emergency air as national officials discussed the latest Red demands for what appears virtually unconditional surrender.

TRADING TIP HIKES PRICES

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP) — The government is trying to find out who tipped off traders a week ago that the Agriculture Department was going to boost its export allocation of food fats and oils for this quarter.

When news got out that the government was going to hike overseas shipments of these items by 107,000,000 pounds prices of some fats and oils went up.

There was no indication that the government itself suffered financial loss because it has not yet gone into the market for that part of the fat allocation which it supplies occupied Germany and other areas.

The official announcement of the extra export allocation was made yesterday. It called for 109,000,000 pounds of lard, cottonseed oil, soy beans, soy bean oil and peanuts in addition to the regular allocations previously announced for the January-March period.

Now officials want to know where the leak developed.

An investigation is being conducted by the compliance and investigation branch of the Agriculture department's production and marketing administration.

NEW EVIDENCE IN LEVIN CASE

Philadelphia, Jan. 15 (AP)—A street car conductor said he saw Seymour Levin, accused scissor-knife slayer, and his 12-year-old victim together on a trolley the afternoon of the killing, police report.

The conductor, Herman Johnson, 42, told detectives he had been employed on the West Philadelphia run for two years and knew the 16-year-old Levin as a regular passenger.

Detective John Clay said the conductor's story upsets young Levin's claim that he met Ellis Simons early in the evening on a street corner. Police insist Levin met Ellis in a downtown Philadelphia movie.

Meantime, both defense and prosecution prepared the ground for Levin's trial. He is being held without bail on a homicide charge in county prison.

The victim's body—bearing more than 40 stab wounds, its face disfigured almost beyond recognition—was found Sunday morning behind the Levin garage. Police say the slaying occurred last Saturday night.

Quarter Sessions Judge Harry S. McDevitt yesterday granted the state permission to have Levin examined by three psychiatrists immediately. James Dessen, counsel for the defendant, protested McDevitt's action on grounds the defense should be permitted to examine Levin first.

"How to Make Your Church Win People" was the theme of the closing sermon on Friday night of the preaching mission conducted by the Littlestown Ministerium in St. Paul's Lutheran church. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, Gettysburg seminary, who was the preacher for the week, based his final sermon on Matthew 28:20, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

Field For Evangelism
Dr. Rasmussen said, "If our church is to win people, there must be a will to evangelism on the part of both pastor and people. We have plenty of prospects, for we are told that there are still more than 50 per cent of the world outside of the church. However, no person is a prospect for the church until the church is definitely mindful of him as one whom it will seek. Unfortunately we aim at everybody at the same time, and nobody in particular. To win people, we must get someone on the prospect list."

Continuing he said, "Having a prospect, we must pursue the prospect. Evangelism is apt to fail either because of a lack of purpose, or having a purpose, it gets lost by the way because we are too busy to seek those whom we have on the prospect list."

Finally he said, "There must be a preservation of the fruits of evangelism. Various methods of evangelism are given a bad name by the charge that the results are temporary. However, the primary fault is not the evangelistic method, but the failure to build the results of evangelism into the fold of the church."

The Rev. Grantas E. Hoopert, pastor of Centenary Methodist church and president of the ministerium conducted the service. The responsive reading was Psalm 26 and the Rev. Mr. Hoopert read Matthew 5:1-16 as the scripture lesson. He expressed a great appreciation for the cooperation of organizations, congregations and individuals and especially St. Paul's congregation, which enabled this mission to be a success. There was no organized effort on the part of organizations to worship in a body for the closing service and yet there was an attendance of approximately 400.

OK ON ACHESON SEEMS CERTAIN

By JACK BELL

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Critics of Dean Acheson scraped the bottom of the barrel today in search of Senate votes against his confirmation as Secretary of State.

Senator Capehart (R-Ind.), often critical of administration foreign policy, told a reporter he doesn't know anyone who is going to fight the nomination actively.

Capehart wouldn't say how he will vote, however. Neither would Senator Brewster (R-Me.), whose friends said he might be among the few who would not go along with President Truman's choice for the top cabinet job.

Chairman Taft of Ohio said that while he will poll the Senate Republican Policy committee to see if any members want to make an issue of the cabinet choice, he doesn't know of any opposition now.

The 13 to 0 count by which the Senate Foreign Relations committee approved Acheson's appointment yesterday formally lined up Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, chief Republican exponent of the bipartisan foreign policy, behind the nominee.

Vandenberg told reporters he is preparing a brief speech of approval for Tuesday, when Chairman Connally (D-Tex) said the matter will be brought before the Senate.

Chapter 3
They stood for a moment with backs pressed to the station, bracing themselves against the wall.

"How about you, Cinderella?" —love it," she answered in a weak voice.

"Can't say you sound very enthusiastic. Think you can make it, huh?"

Without waiting for an answer he slipped the traveling bag and nudged her up in his arms. An instant later he had deposited her, hunched and breathless, on the seat of the big rain-drenched car.

It was a simple, protective gesture, such as any man might have made in similar circumstances. But as she said, "Thanks, Sir Raleigh," Betty felt her face flush with embarrassment. Jack Barnes returned with the traveling bag and slid into the seat beside her.

"Might as well tell you, it won't do you any good to be seen in the company of the local bad-boy. You might as well know they don't like me — and I don't give a hoot," he said with what seemed like unnecessary vehemence.

Betty's expression did not change. "He wasn't fooling her. She had a little quirk, and was convinced he was joking."

"What are you trying to do — rid of me?" she asked. "Don't tell me you've been out robbing banks and things? Now I know you're joking."

"I did not answer immediately. I sat with his hand on the ignition key, staring down at it, but he did not start the car. At last he turned and his eyes met hers sadly."

"We might as well get this night here and now," he said. "I don't like me. Period. And I'm not joking. I never was more serious in my life."

"He could not help feeling a little sorry for him. His protestation that didn't care a hoot had not deceived her. He did care too. He had just as terribly as she did."

"That was why he had told her and why his attitude toward her had changed so suddenly."

"Without another word, he reached the ignition key. A moment later they were out on the open highway, riding the hurricane."

Gertrude Warren stood in front of a panel mirror in her bedroom, applying makeup with a grimly determined hand. It had been drizzling all day, and now that it was early time to go to the railroad station the rain and the wind had become utterly mad.

This storm annoyed her for a number of reasons. She would not be able to wear the new dress and the which she'd selected for this momentous occasion. They were perfect too; made her look for all the world like a movie star.

Her makeup would run and her hair would be a complete mess. "I'd be lucky, in fact, if Mother allowed her to take the new car out this weather — even though it is her own car, a gift from her parents on her sixteenth birthday a few weeks ago."

Chances were she would have to go to the station in the rickety old lorry, with Father at the wheel. "I might even forget to come by," he said.

She resumed her stance in front of the mirror, and began to take where she had left off. Today, she resolved, she would go as far as she liked with lipstick, mascara and rouge — never mind what Mother said. Mother, like Father, had a lot to learn. Times had changed.

Other must be made to realize at the arrival of a new girl — especially a New York girl — in a town of Carrollton's size was not to be taken lightly. It meant real competition. It was a challenge no girl her right mind would ignore.

Even if the newcomer was a relative, as Betty Matthews was, she would do a lot of damage in a place where there were so few really glib young men. Gertrude hoped vaguely that Betty was the stunner type, wore glasses, and was a little on the homely side.

During the past ten days, since she had known Betty was coming, Gertrude had tried very hard to find out from her Father just what her cousin was like. But David Warren, engrossed in his own problems as Carrollton's postmaster and never an observant man, could tell her little.

He had, however, volunteered one bit of information that disturbed Gertrude. Betty Matthews, it seemed, was interested in nursing as a career. She had, in fact, been in training for a while before her mother's death. Chances were she would want to take it up again, once she got over the shock of her loss. In that case, Carrollton hospital would be the place for her and he, David Warren, would see that she got in. All of which would have been highly satisfactory to Gertrude, were it not for the fact that a new doctor had arrived in town. He was young, single and, in Gertrude's opinion, almost unbearably attractive in a homely, wistful sort of way. As yet, he had not been accepted by the older, more conservative residents. But quite a few of the local girls had contrived minor ailments as an excuse to go to work on him.

Now, as she stood adding the finishing touches to her toilette and looking much older than her sixteen years, the point was more in evidence than usual.

She then slipped at her reflection in the mirror, lifted a coral-tipped hand to her blonde hair in what she considered a properly dramatic gesture. She was glad she'd decided on this sophisticated upswept hairdo.

"It's ever so becoming, and it makes me look every day of twenty," she told herself happily. "If Betty Matthews gets ahead of me, she'll have to be good — darn good!"

Chapter 4
Mrs. Warren, an older and plumper version of her daughter, sat at her desk in the living room, her back awkwardly turned. She was studying a paper which was to deliver before the City Improvement Club the following day, and had not heard Gertrude come down the steps.

Gertrude stood in the doorway, her face averted, putting on her raincoat and scarf. She was tempted to slip out of the house, take the new car, and go on to the station. But she knew that would be foolhardy. Mother would throw a fit, might even make a scene right in front of Cousin Betty.

"I'm going, Mother," Gertrude said tentatively. As she spoke she arranged her scarf so as to shield her painted face.

"Going where, dear?" Mrs. Warren said absently, her eyes still fixed on the paper.

"To the station to meet Betty, of course," Gertrude hesitated briefly, then plunged ahead: "I know it's raining pretty hard, Mom, but the old jalopy does look terrible and—"

She stopped, took a deep breath, and started again. This rebellion business was harder than she'd realized. "What I'm trying to say is, I'm sure Dad won't mind if I—er—take the new car."

There—she had said it! In her perturbation she loosened her grip on the scarf and it had fallen to her shoulders. She was too confused to retrieve it.

"I don't know what you're talking about, Gertrude," Mrs. Warren folded the club paper very carefully and put it into the desk drawer. "Don't be ridiculous, dear. You know very well you're not taking the new car out in this weather. You aren't even going out yourself. Besides, your father has already gone to the station in the old car."

"Gone?" wailed Gertrude. "But, Mother, he knew I intended going. Why didn't he call me? Oh, he can't do this to me!" Her eyes filled with tears and she stamped her foot in rage.

"Gertrude! Stop it! Stop it, I say! I won't have you going into tantrums like this," Mrs. Warren gasped. She had looked up and seen her daughter for the first time since the girl had come downstairs. "What in the world have you done to yourself?" she asked when she'd recovered her voice.

Gertrude, although taken aback by this new development, tried to bluff it out. "I—don't know what you're talking about, Mother."

"I'm surprised at you, Gertrude," Mrs. Warren was saying in the accusing voice her daughter knew so well.

"I should think," Mrs. Warren went on, "you'd have more pride. Now go right upstairs and wash that dreadful stuff off your face. Take your hair down too. And get that frightful polish off your nails. They look like claws. What will your cousin think? Now run along, child," she added in a kinder voice.

Gertrude made no move to obey. Instead, she made another feeble protest. "All the girls wear makeup," she said.

Mrs. Warren changed her tactics. "Well, perhaps they do use makeup, dear," she admitted. "But they use a little discretion too. They don't go overboard—at least, nice girls don't. Besides, no girl in Carrollton has your complexion and hair. I've never objected to your using a little rice powder now and then."

"Rice powder, indeed! Oh, Mother, I'm sixteen years old now. How can you be so old-fashioned?"

Mrs. Warren could only sit and stare at her daughter. Gertrude had always been a difficult child, but not this difficult. Did Betty Matthews' coming have something to do with it? Evidently it did, for Gertrude was saying:

"What will Betty think when she finds out I'm supposed to use rice powder and can't even drive my own car without getting written permission? What'll she think when she hears Dad going around calling me silly names like 'Gertie' and 'Tootsie Roll'—and stuff?"

"I've never called you anything but Gertrude. If your father chooses to be so undignified—Mrs. Warren sniffed her disapproval of her husband's loose manner of speaking—"I can do nothing about it. Naturally I shall continue calling you by the name you were christened. I shall call your cousin 'Betty,' too. I'm sure she would prefer that to 'Betty,' which is obviously only a nickname."

"As for the car—"

She stopped and listened. "Wasn't that the doorbell, dear?"

Mrs. Warren had scarcely touched the knob when the door was flung open, obviously by the wind, and a young girl was practically blown into the hall. Behind her was Jack Barnes who carried a traveling bag and was struggling to close the wooden storm door.

Chapter 5
"Sorry to bust in on you like this," Jack Barnes said, "but the wind took the door out of my hands."

Mrs. Warren favored him with a wintry smile, but said nothing. He managed to close the storm door and put the traveling bag inside the hall. As if to bridge the awkward moment, he spoke to Gertrude.

"Hello, Gertie," he said, and stepped back into the small area way which separated the storm door from the door proper. Some perverse impulse, prompted by the awareness that he was not welcome there, made him add a little insolently:

"It is Gertie, isn't it? Gosh, you're looking classy."

Gertrude didn't know whether to feel flattered or insulted, so she took refuge in a nervous giggle, thus adding fuel to a moment that was already difficult enough. Mrs. Warren obviously was trying very hard to hold on to her poise while she waited for Jack Barnes to explain a situation which, to her, made no sense at all. Either she was following the rule of "first things first," or she had forgotten all about the girl who stood, silent and withdrawn, in the dimness of the hall.

Jack Barnes tried to explain. "Betty—er—Miss Matthews, I mean, was hanging around the depot in North Carrollton. So I picked her up and brought her on over."

Mrs. Warren's lips tightened, but only for an instant. She managed a smile of apology, then hurried over and kissed her niece on both cheeks. In the confusion following the inexplicable arrival, she had honestly forgotten the girl. She tried to make up for it now in the warmth of her welcome.

She was still puzzled as to just why Betty Matthews had been "hanging around the depot" in North Carrollton, when she should have come straight to Carrollton as her uncle had told her to do. It seemed incredible that the girl should have been so indiscreet as to allow herself to be "picked up" by any man—much less Jack Barnes, whose cavalier behavior had been the talk of the town ever since he came out of the Army. But, being a fair-minded woman, Mrs. Warren decided to reserve judgment on these points until she knew the whole story.

Gertrude rushed forward and flung her arms around her cousin's neck, genuinely glad to welcome her. She had nothing to fear from this girl. Gertrude told herself happily. Why, poor Betty, with her pale, damp face and somber black clothes, looked for all the world like a little drowned kitten.

Mrs. Warren, more observant than her daughter, wasn't so sure about that. She had not been deceived by the strained, tired look on the girl's face. On the contrary, she had noted a dramatic quality in Betty Matthews' fragile beauty that neither the wind nor the rain nor a tiresome train journey had obscured.

Aunt Minniebelle had smiled upon Betty, but her manner toward Jack Barnes had been nothing short of insulting. The least Aunt Minniebelle could do, thought Betty, would be to thank him graciously and invite him in out of the rain. His only offense, as far as Betty could see, was the simple act of befriending her.

She was relieved, when Gertrude released her, to see that Aunt Minniebelle had at last decided to be courteous to the inoffensive young man. Although Jack Barnes still stood outside the door, she appeared to be listening to what he was saying. Evidently he was explaining the situation in detail. When he had finished, Aunt Minniebelle said in a rather loud voice:

"It was very kind of you to bring Bettina. I'm sure her uncle will appreciate it. Of course it was all very unfortunate."

This was too much for Betty's sense of justice. She felt that she should make amends for her aunt's half-hearted thank-you, although she had expressed her own gratitude many times during the ride. She opened her lips to speak, but her young cousin was too quick for her.

Lifting an elaborately manicured hand to her hair in the most theatrical gesture Betty had ever seen outside of a movie, Gertrude slithered forward.

"I'm sure Father would want to thank you in person, Jack," she said. "He ought to be back any minute now. Do come in. I—I'll make you a cup of tea."

There was a moment of stunned silence, broken only by the sound of the rain and of the chain beating against the storm door. Then Jack Barnes' lips parted in that devil-may-care grin and his left eyebrow shot up. It was impossible to tell whether or not he was joking, but there was a suggestion of defiance in his voice when he said:

"Sorry, Gertie. Thanks a lot. But I never drink anything stronger than liquor—or haven't you heard?"

The front door and the storm door slammed simultaneously. With her hand still on the knob, Mrs. Warren turned, her face livid with rage.

"Gertrude! Go up to your room immediately!" she commanded.

"I don't know what's come over the child," she told Betty when her daughter was out of earshot. "I'm sorry she behaved so badly."

She doesn't take after my family at all."

A swift glance at the older woman assured Betty that no offense whatsoever was intended. Aunt Minniebelle's tactless remark was nothing more than the unconscious protest of a mother whose daughter resembled her to an alarming degree.

"If I stay here, I'll have to get used to it," Betty decided. "And a lot of other strange things too."

Chapter 6
Rain — a cold, driving rain — beat down upon New England for ten days hand-running, making gardening impossible and blasting all hopes for a long, fruitful season. Carrollton, with the Bay on one side and a chain of lakes on the other, became a fine place for ducks — but not for visitors.

Every night David Warren would come home, wet and tired to the bone, but unfailingly good-natured; ready to regale his women-folk with the latest weather reports and the various surmises as to the cause of it all.

Tonight, however, as they sat around the supper table, David Warren was aware of a tenseness in the atmosphere. He was trying his best to be gay and entertaining, and getting almost no cooperation at all.

Gertrude, who had been denied the use of her car for the duration of the storm, sat with her eyes glued to her plate, just being her resentful young self. Now that the newness had worn off, she no longer considered it necessary to impress her cousin.

It had been difficult enough to hold the pose through ten days of enforced intimacy with Betty. And a bitter quarrel with her mother that very afternoon had destroyed Gertrude's last defense. Mother was always doing the most unpredictable things. Gertrude reflected. She had waited ten whole days before taking her daughter to task for "making a fool of herself in front of that unspeakable Jack Barnes." And she had read her little riot act right in front of Betty.

Therefore, Gertrude wasn't speaking to her mother — or anybody else, if she could help it. She sat staring down at her plate while her father tried vainly to make conversation about the weather.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Warren sat picking at her food and looking for all the world like a martyr. She was still writhing under what she referred to as her daughter's "back-talk." She was sniffing a little, but not altogether for effect. Although she was loath to admit it, she was coming down with a cold.

Betty, for her part, was trying to keep her mind on her uncle's valiant keep her mind on her uncle's valiant was trying to remember to laugh — or at least smile — at the appropriate moments. But it was hard to do that when all she could think of was the painful scene between Gertrude and Aunt Minniebelle earlier in the afternoon.

She knew Aunt Minniebelle was sick — sicker, in fact, than she would admit. It struck her as most unfair, however, that her aunt had seen fit to stage the scene in her presence.

"Does it always rain all spring?" Betty asked, feeling she should say something.

Uncle Dave laughed as if she'd made a good joke. "We don't have spring in these parts," he told her. "Just winter and summer. One of these days you'll wake up and it'll be summer. The sun'll be shining, the flowers'll be blooming and — well, everything will be hunky-dory once more. Eh, Gertie? Eh, Minniebelle?"

Gertrude nodded, but did not look up from her plate.

"I hope so," Aunt Minniebelle said in a tone that was not at all optimistic.

"Then, if there's nothing unusual about this rainy spell, why are all the people who hang around the postoffice complaining about it?" Betty wanted to know.

Uncle Dave's eyes twinkled. "Could be on account of I'm a Democrat," he bantered. "They're blaming the administration now. Want to have the whole caboodle thrown out." He laughed and Betty laughed with him.

"I don't see anything so funny about it — you being a Democrat, I mean. I should think it would be a little — er — embarrassing, being the only one in town. Or cause they're joking when they blame the administration for the rain. And maybe you're right. Maybe it is just their way of telling you they don't like you either."

David Warren, admittedly the most popular man in Carrollton, was accustomed to his wife's temperamental outbursts. He grinned good-naturedly and said:

"Well, maybe they don't like my politics, but I'm not changing them. But I reckon I can bear it. Anyhow, they put up with me — figuring somebody's got to be a Democrat and a postmaster. Pretty good job, too, being postmaster in a town of three thousand. Best job around here, in fact."

"No," David was saying, "I wouldn't be mayor if they gave me the town. Of course Carrollton's a swell place — finest town in the country. But I'll settle for the post-office job."

"You can't go on being postmaster forever," the wife of his bosom reminded him.

"Sure I can't. Don't know as I'd want to even if I could. Some day I want to retire and do a couple attendant at the hospital; orderly, janitor, gardener, lawn tender and everything else. He worked seven days a week, 52 weeks a year. He started his duties at 5 o'clock in the morning and ended them when the "rush" of work was over. He recalls starting at 5 a. m. one morning and working straight through that day and the next, retiring about midnight and then being routed out an hour or two later to start all over again.

Actually Freed has been in residence at the hospital longer than any other person, although he is not the oldest employee. Miss Anna Mischler, housekeeper at the nurses' home, who started with the hospital as a bookkeeper when it was of the things I've always wanted to do."

Gertrude came to life. "What do you want to do, Father? Move to Boston or New York, or some other place where a person can — really live? Oh, Father, let's!" Gertrude, like her mother, never failed to italicize the words which she considered important.

David Warren shook his head and his grin, this time, was a little sheepish. "Sorry to disappoint you, Gertie. I — well, I just want to go fishing."

founded, did not take up residence at the hospital until the nurses' home was built. Freed was living at the hospital prior to the construction of the nurses' home.

Freed worked for 14 years before he received his first vacation—a period of two weeks—and he found time for the vacation only at the insistence of the late Doctor Dickson.

Raised Chickens, Vegetables
He chuckled over the fact that the trees which tower now above the driveway into the hospital were only about three feet high when he joined the hospital staff.

When he started to work at the hospital he found a flock of 22 hens there. He built up the flock until at one time he had 160, and each spring started 200 chicks. He had a large garden in which he raised great quantities of food for the hospital. One year the women in the kitchen preserved 120 quarts of string beans from those raised in his garden.

Freed's comment on that is "We had a lot of beans with our meals that year."

In the garden, in addition to vegetables, he also raised broom corn. One year he secured sufficient broom corn to have 14 brooms made for the hospital.

In addition to his other duties there were also the three acres of grass lawn to be mowed and trimmed.

Considerate of Nurses
Freed found the lawn fairly easy to maintain in ordinary weather, cutting the three acres in sections after supper on summer evenings with a power mower. The late cutting was necessary in order not to disturb the night nurses who slept during the day. But there was one summer when Freed found the going particularly rough. "It rained all summer and the power mower would not operate, so I had to do it all with a 12 inch hand mower." That was in addition to all of the other duties then assigned to him.

The maintenance foreman can tell many a story of "the good old days" at the hospital, of the days when Miss Martha McKay was superintendent and of her Freed says, "I don't believe she ever slept. Day or night she was out taking care of her hospital."

The rush at the hospital today with the doctors sending patients there as soon as possible in order to give them the best of care is a recent development, Freed recalls. "Back in the early days people didn't want to come to the hospital and when they did, finally, they were almost dead. The doctors would try to coax them so long that the patient frequently arrived too late."

Has Three Sons
Freed recalls unusual incidents such as: The man from whom 264 gallstones were removed; the man who drove his car off the road to avoid an accident. Just when he thought he was safe a motorcycle was thrown from his bike, flew through the air into the man's car and seriously injured him.

Besides his hospital duties Mr. Freed also found time to help organize and be an active member of the Gettysburg Moose lodge.

He has three sons, Glenn Edward Freed, who is employed by the Adams Apple corporation; Linn E. Freed who works for Weaver's dairy and Dennis L. Freed, who has a farm at Quakertown. Dennis is the oldest of the three, Glenn and Linn are twins.

ONWARD WITH FAITH

There is hardly a single one of us who doesn't have his doubts, his questionings, his grave fears, and his disillusionments. But far beyond any of these, and in the outer garden, where Faith walks in meditative mood, the angels of our better nature gather to give us assurance and hope.

No matter what prevails, if there is kept forever burning an honest, fervent fire of Faith within that heart of yours, life will always be well worth the living, and well worth the striving that you experience. Your glooms will have a hovering heaven of light and warmth about them. And they will vanish as the dew does in an early summer sun.

Said William James: "Be not afraid of life. Believe that life is worth living, and your belief will help create the fact." So—onward with Faith. Onward with the transient joys that sprinkle their rays across your pathway. Onward with the belief that there are worlds outside your own small one that need exploring and missionarying. Onward always with an ever triumphing Faith!

Living to ourselves alone is what creates most of our regrets, our doubts, our lessening enthusiasms, and our discontent. Nothing is truer than that "man doth not live by bread only." He must live by love, sacrifice, and ever-spreading interest in others, and by a wholehearted faith in oneself.

Our democratic institutions and our free way of life would vanish overnight if we lacked faith in them. It is this faith that keeps them alive, and by which alone they can remain permanent. Imagine for a moment what kind of a world this would be for you did they not exist. Are they not worth preserving? Is there a more inspiring statue in all this world than the one at the entrance of the New York harbor—"Liberty, enlightening the World?" But may it remain liberty, and not any phase of selfish gain! I like that first part of the Bible quotation—"Faith is the substance." And what a substance it is! It is the substance of all our dreams, our hopes, and of all our high resolves.

THE MANY ARE FINE

Some men do evil. There's no doubt of that.

Some women, too, and shame it is to say.

But there are many, and with them I've sat,

Who, unobserved, live well from day to day.

I've known them and I know them—high and low,

And rich and poor—who strive to do the right.

Their lives against the mean and sordid glow

Like beacons on a dark and stormy night.

I know that there is evil rampant here.

I've looked on much I've never understood.

But though in print their names may not appear,

Many are fine, clean living, gracious, good.

MOST PEOPLE CALM ABOUT INCOME TAXES

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Most people must have been left calm when President Truman talked of raising income taxes.

That's because most people who pay personal income taxes wouldn't be touched by the kind of tax raise he mentioned. He asked Congress this month to raise taxes on corporations and consider raising them on people in the middle and upper income groups. And at a White House news conference Thursday he was asked what he meant when he spoke of "middle" income people.

He said the Treasury Department defines the "middle" people as those starting at $6,000 and going up to $25,000 and $30,000 a year.

14 Per Cent Above $6,000
But how many people make $6,000 a year or more in this country? You can get different figures from different government agencies. The Federal Reserve Board seems to have the latest collection, so take a look at them.

The board's figures are for the families in 1947—show that only 14 defines a family as "all related persons living in one household."

The board's figures—for 42,000,000 families in 1947—show that only 14 per cent of them—or 5,880,000 families—had income over $6,000.

The other 86 per cent—or 36,120,000 families out of 42,000,000—had incomes under $6,000 a year and this ranged down to below $1,000 a year.

Nearly As Many Under $1,000
Starting at the bottom and working up, this shows the percentage of families in the various income groups:

Under $1,000 a year—13 per cent of the families; $1,000 to $2,000 a year—18 per cent; $2,000 to $3,000—20 per cent; $3,000 to $4,000—17 per cent; $4,000 to $5,000—11 per cent; $5,000 to $6,000—7 per cent; $6,000 to $10,000—10 per cent; and $10,000 and over—4 per cent.

These Federal Reserve Board figures do not show precisely how much of the American families' income went to families with income of $6,000 and over.

But it's people with $6,000 income and over that Mr. Truman said Congress should consider taxing a little harder.

Says 'Tad' Lincoln

despite. Twin hurricanes of lead and din rocked the dead about Cemetery ridge, shattered their coffins and piled atop of them hills of warm, blood-rotted and mutilated cadavers.

"And so a cemetery sign went on to fame.
"There came the time when the once-human sacrifices of Gettysburg had to be laid to rest. That was on November 19, 1863, just 85 years before the stamp's issuance.

"To Gettysburg that day there came a throng containing two men who were to speak at two dedication exercises at the national cemetery.
"One was Edward Everett of Massachusetts, former senator, governor, congressman, vice presidential candidate, secretary of state, minister to London, president of Harvard—the king of American classical orators.

Press Sings Praise
"The other speaker was Abraham Lincoln, lean, awkward and unpolished, only too plainly a plain man sprung from plain stock and given to simple words. He stood there for five minutes reading a speech he had conceived the night before and which he was convinced would 'not scour.' He finished before some of the photographers assigned to the ceremonies had time to take his picture.

"The dedicatory remarks of President Lincoln will live among the annals of men," said the Chicago Tribune.

"That this was the right thing in the right place, and a perfect thing in every respect, was the universal encomium," commented the Cincinnati Gazette.

"We know not where to look for a more admirable speech than the brief one which the President made at the close of Mr. Everett's oration," said The Providence Journal.

"The oration by Mr. Everett was smooth and cold," commented Harper's Weekly. "The few words by the President were from the heart to the heart."

"Again fame rested between the contrasts.

Over-Indulgent Father
"But the speaker was a man of opposites, unyielding on one hand but an over-indulgent father on the other. His best friend, his almost constant companion, small, lisping Thomas (Tad) Lincoln, lay ill in the White House the night he penned the Gettysburg dedicatory speech. Lincoln probably had the death of his second son, William Wallace, only a year before, still vividly in mind.

"Thus the hand of small Tad Lincoln, destined to live only until 1871, may have had a consequential part in writing that speech which began 'Four score and seven years ago, our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation...'
"Willie and Tad had always been privileged beings at the White House," wrote Ida M. Tarbell in her 'Life of Abraham Lincoln.' Their pranks and companionship undoubtedly did much to relieve the tremendous strain the President was suffering.

"When both children fell ill in 1862 and when it became certain that Willie, the elder, would die, the president slipped away from the cabinet and from routine duties at every opportunity to go to the sick room. During the last days of Willie's life Lincoln shared with the nurse the night vigils at his bedside. Willie finally died on February 20 and the president neglected public duties to the extent that a month after the funeral he still was apologizing for oversights because of 'domestic afflictions.'

Died in Infancy
"Another son, Eddie, named for Edward Baker, senator from Oregon killed in the battle of Ball's Bluff, died in infancy. Hence the president's affections were centered on Tad. His goats, his ponies became the talk of Washington and the war department presented him with an officer's commission and a uniform. Once, when the White House stables were afire, Lincoln had to be restrained from plunging into the flames to rescue these pets.

"Fortunately at the Judge Willis home in Gettysburg, about midnight November 18, Lincoln was informed by telegram that Tad was better.
"Both Edward Everett and Thomas Lincoln well could be pictured on the commemorative; both did their share in making it possible, in creating and publicizing the Gettysburg speech.

"Fifteen thousand, some said 30,000 or 50,000 were on Cemetery Hill for the exercises... when the procession from Gettysburg arrived afoot and on horseback representing the United States government, the army and navy, governors of states, mayors of cities, a regiment of troops, hospital corps, telegraph company representatives, Knights Templar, Masonic Fraternity, Odd Fellows and other benevolent associations, the press, fire departments, citizens of Pennsylvania and other states," says Carl Sandburg in his 'Abraham Lincoln—The War Years.'

"Lincoln emerged from the Judge Willis residence, where he had spent the night, attired in a black suit, a high silk hat and white gloves. Mr. Lincoln was mounted upon a young and beautiful chestnut horse, the largest in the Cumberland Valley," according to Henry Clay Cochrane, lieutenant of marines, who accompanied the Lincoln party.

Minute Guns Speak

"The president rode 'easily, bowing occasionally to right or to left,' said Cochrane and he noted that, as the procession moved along Baltimore street, the Emmitsburg Road and the Taneytown Road, minute guns boomed. The march, scheduled to start at 10 a. m., did not begin until an hour later, was over in 15 minutes. Bands played until noon, awaiting Everett, the orator of the day.

"The Rev. Thomas H. Stockton, chaplain of the House of Representatives prayed while the thousands uncovered their heads.

"Benjamin F. French, officer in charge of the buildings at Washington introduced Everett, who rose and bowed low to Lincoln.

"He spoke for an hour and 57 minutes, some said a trifle over two hours," says Sandburg...
"It was the effort of his life and embodied the perfections of the school of oratory in which he had spent his career. His erect form and sturdy shoulders, his white hair and flung-back head at dramatic moments, his voice, his poise... held most of his audience to him, though the people in the front rows had taken their seats three hours before his oration closed."

"The Baltimore Glee club sang an ode written for the occasion by French. When it ended, Col. Ward Hill Lamon, Lincoln confidante, announced, 'The President of the United States.'

"Lincoln arose, pulled out two sheets of paper at which he glanced occasionally and read the brief remarks in a 'sharp, unmusical treble voice.'

Applause For Rites

"Hardly had Lincoln begun than he came to the closing 'and that the government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.'

"The New York Tribune and other newspaper reporters relate that there was applause at five spots in the address and long continued clapping at the end, but the 'important men' on the platform hinted that all this was formal and perfunctory, a tribute rather to the occasion, says Sandburg.

"The speech, lasting five minutes, caused a Confederate outburst of war propaganda.

"The music, the eloquence, the bottled tears and hermetically sealed grief, prepared for the occasion, were all properly brought out in honor of the heroes," said the Richmond Examiner, "whom they crimp in Ireland, inveigle in Germany, or hunt down in the streets of New York."

"But even in the north, there was a strain of criticism.
"Said the Chicago Times:

"The readers of The Times, too, ought to know that the valorous President did not dare to make this little journey to Gettysburg without being escorted by a body-guard of soldiers. For the first time in the history of the country, the President of the United States, in traveling through a part of his dominions, on a peaceful, even religious mission, had to be escorted by a body guard of soldiers... it was fear for his own personal safety which led the President to go escorted as any other military despot might go."

"In Lincoln's own hand, six copies of the Gettysburg address are known to be extant. The first and second drafts of the speech were presented later by Hay to the Library of Congress. At Everett's request, the president later wrote a third copy and the manuscript was auctioned at the New York sanitary fair. A fourth was written for the Baltimore soldiers and sailors fair at instigation of Historian George Bancroft; a fifth went to be lithographed for 'Autograph Leaves of Our Country's Authors' and the sixth was presented to Judge Willis.

Smallpox Is Reward

"At 6:30 p. m., Lincoln was back on the train headed for Washington. A wet towel lay across his eyes and forehead when the train reached the capital, and he was stretched out on one of the seats of the drawing room. A week later, he was down with varioloid, a mild form of smallpox. This apparently was the immediate reward for one of the master speeches of all history.

"But rewards have been many in the near-century which has passed. The new stamp is the latest. It will return Lincoln to the scene of one of his greatest triumphs, to the battlefield where little Tad Lincoln and Orator Edward Everett helped to make history—and a stamp."

On Display At C. W. Enley Show Next Week

While offering a long list of improvements in the new 1949 Studebaker models, the company has continued the popular Raymond Loewy design and added new interior luxury. The famed Studebaker vision is especially notable in the Commander five-passenger Starlight coupe (shown) with its panoramic windows. Topping the list of chassis changes are refinements which provide stepped-up performance in both the Commander and Champion engines.

give the new tire every advantage. I recently watched new tires being made ready with the aid of a special device that pulled the beads apart gently and evenly so that the tire man was able to insert the tubes not only with ease but with assurance that no pinching would develop.

Useful In a Pinch
When the stoplights failed a resourceful driver merely switched on the parking and tail lights when ever he made a stop during the balance of his daytime run. This was sufficient to catch the attention of those behind. He knew the stoplights were not working because there was no familiar flicker of the ammeter when he pressed down the brake pedal. Trouble was with the stop-light switch.

Driving Plays a Part
In spite of all the complexity of remote gear shifting any driver can get into trouble with his job of switching from one gear to another if he fails to observe one simple step in the process. Just let him fail to declutch fully and there will be sufficient drag on the transmission's clutch gear to cause a sensation of sticking. You get somewhat the same situation when the car is driven too fast in second gear and the shift to third is attempted before the clutch is disengaged, especially if the throttle is closed too suddenly. In fact, the engine should be accelerated for an instant just before any shift out of low or second.

What's On Your Mind?
Q. At higher speeds and on hills there is smell of burning rubber in my car. Would the rubberized undercoating have anything to do with this? J. M. N.
A. Undercoating materials are fireproof after once dried, but it is possible that the muffler or tail pipe was covered. Such parts should be left exposed.

Q. Do all car batteries have the negative post grounded to the frame? I have had various opinions on this and would like to know the facts. Wm. L. K.
A. On some cars the positive side of the battery is grounded. Car engineers differ as to the advantages and disadvantages.

Q. In a recent article you said that loose jets will cause gasoline to leak from a carburetor when the car stands over night. Is this possible with an electric fuel pump? E. G.
A. The pump would have nothing to do with this. Fuel leaks out of the carburetor bowl and when this is gone there is no further loss until the engine is again started and stopped. Sometimes the fuel escapes from the bowl by capillary attraction. This is usually due to an accumulation of foreign matter on the inside of the bowl.

Q. I would like to bring the car's compression up to that of a 1949 model. Please let me know how many thousands of an inch must be removed from the cylinder head to bring compression up to around 115 pounds. J. H. Jr.
A. My advice is a simple "don't." The head may warp.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, West Hartford, 7, Connecticut, and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply. There is no charge.

More Aids to Starting
Include in your current list of "this may help you" aids to winter starting some consideration for the choke valve itself. If it seems to be troublesome perhaps it is afflicted with a sticking shaft. This should not be oiled. Instead free up the shaft by removing it and cleaning it. Don't use abrasives as this may make it loose.

And while you're at it take a look at the heat tube which runs from the exhaust manifold to the automatic choke control. Its screen may become clogged. If so, heat is reaching the control, and the choking period is immeasurably lengthened. This results in an overrich mixture, fouled plugs and subsequent starting delay.

Hard to Believe
Most old cars could be made to ride surprisingly well by replacing the shock absorbers, installing new tires and having the leaf springs rechecked. . . . One of my earlier cars had to be polished with olive oil. . . . The best rust inhibitor for car cooling systems is emulsifying oil. . . . In spite of the increase in power output one of the new higher compression engines will require less cooling. . . . It surprises many observers how some people can worry so much about the atom bomb and so little about the pent-up energy in the gas tank just behind the rear seat. . . . The peak power of an automobile engine is called for in less than 5 per cent of the car's mileage.

Easy With Those Tires
Watching some roadside lads pounding away at a new tire in a desperate effort to mount it on its wheel and rim raised the question as to how much rubber is damaged through improper handling when new. Sidewalls are easily damaged with this sort of butchering, especially if sharp tools are used for the mounting work. Well-equipped shops

New Oxford

New Oxford—Dr. and Mrs. Allen W. Kelly, East Berlin, formerly of here, are observing their 20th wedding anniversary this week. Mrs. Kelly is the former Miss Amy Haar, a daughter of Mrs. Mazie Jacobs Haar and the late Henry M. Haar, near here. She was a teacher before her marriage. Dr. Kelly formerly practiced medicine here and now has an office for general cases in East Berlin and an office for the treatment of eye, ear, nose and throat ailments at York.

Miss M. Edythe Crayton, whose home is in Tennessee is spending some time at the Park hotel while managing the production of the forthcoming Lions club show, "Fun for You," to take place Monday and Tuesday.

W. A. Bosserman, R. 1, has turned in his resignation as road supervisor of Hamilton township because of the number of his other duties. Calvin Yohe, Pine Run, has been chosen to fill his unexpired term.

In preparation for the Lions club show, "Fun for You," to take place next week, townspeople and friends from other places have been casting their votes for "New Oxford's Ugliest Man."

A number of local businessmen have announced their candidacy for the "Ugliest Man" title, and its big prize to be awarded at the show, by placing in the window of Hemminger's drug store each an unflattering photograph of himself at any time from infancy to recent years. The Lions have placed a ballot box for each candidate in a business place run by another candidate or merchant willing to cooperate.

E. S. Gunnet has taken up residence at the former Taughinbaugh farm on R. 1, vacated in December by the R. W. Sollberger family who moved to Pittsburgh.

Edward Gebhart has purchased the Robert Lemmon farm on R. 1 and will farm it this spring. Mr. Lemmon will farm his newly purchased place near Hanover.

Edna Albert, near here, was guest speaker on Sunday at a Youth Fellowship meeting at the local Church of God.

These officers have been chosen for 1949 by the local fire company: President, Charles Reinecker; vice president, Harold Miller; secretary, Albert S. Townsend; treasurer, Elmo Smith; fire chief, Harry Mumper, assisted by James McCauslin and Jack Coulson; trustees, M. S. Hershey, Glenn Kemper, Ross Koons and Paul Lehman.

Mrs. Parker Zerew is reported improved after her recent serious sickness.

Mr. and Mrs. Lance D. Jacobs, Abington, formerly of here, with their daughters, Judith and Jerry, have returned from their recent visit to Philadelphia where Mrs. Jacobs' mother, Mrs. Thomas Koehler, resides. Mrs. Koehler has been visiting at the Jacobs home.

Color blindness may be either acquired or congenital.

York Springs

York Springs—Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Starry were recently entertained at the Philadelphia home of their niece, Mrs. Stanley Robbins and family. Mrs. Robbins, the former Miss Joan Starry, a daughter of R. M. Starry, resided at the W. R. Starry home for many years, after the death of her mother when she was a child.

Miss Edna Albert, near here, was guest speaker on Sunday at a Youth Fellowship meeting at the local Church of God.

These officers have been chosen for 1949 by the local fire company: President, Charles Reinecker; vice president, Harold Miller; secretary, Albert S. Townsend; treasurer, Elmo Smith; fire chief, Harry Mumper, assisted by James McCauslin and Jack Coulson; trustees, M. S. Hershey,

Final Period Spurt Gives GHS 52-40 Win Over Shippensburg

A 14-point scoring spree in a period of but three minutes during the last period gave the Gettysburg cagers a 52-40 decision over the scrappy Shippensburg high team in a South Penn cage league Friday evening at Shippensburg.

Until that spurt Coach George Forney's outfit was given a stiff argument by the Greyhounds. The game resolved itself into a scoring battle between Lee Lynch, Greyhound center, who led the circuit last year, and Guy Donaldson, Maroon pivot man. Lynch took the honors with 24 tallies while Donaldson landed 18. Bill Eisenhart came through with 15 tallies.

Evenly Contested
The scoring was nip and tuck in the first period which ended in a 10-10 deadlock. Donaldson landed a pair of goals and foul, Eisenhart a goal and foul and Westerdahl a two-pointer for the Maroons' points while Lynch netted two goals and a trio of free tosses to lead Shippensburg.

Shippensburg moved ahead 22-21 at half time on a trio of goals by Lynch and singles by Keefer and Bolton. Each of the Maroon starters broke into the scoring during the period.

The Maroons started to move in the third period and moved ahead 34-30 by holding Shippensburg to a pair of goals, one each by Keefer and Lynch, while the latter added four free tosses. Donaldson, Bushman, Sachs and Eisenhart hit the cords for the locals' points.

Eisenhart's goal and foul tossing sparked the spurt in the final round which clinched the decision.

Jayvees Win
Coach Howard Shoemaker's reserves won an easy 31-14 decision in the preliminary after trailing 5-2 at the end of the first period. It marked the fifth win in eight starts for the scrubs.

On Tuesday the Maroons journey to Mechanicsburg and next Friday meet Hanover here.

A sensational rally in the final three minutes of play enabled Boiling Springs to nose out Littletown 32-31 in an Adams County Basketball league game Friday evening on the winners' floor and thereby remain unbeaten in league competition.

Littletown led 28-25 with three minutes to go but the Bubblers rallied and went ahead 30-29 on Fishel's foul and a goal by Diehl put the clincher on the contest. Sentz looped 18 points for the losers.

In the preliminary game the Bubblers reserved won 35-18.

New Oxford kept right at the heels of the league leaders by scoring a 48-24 triumph over Biglerville on the New Oxford court.

The first period ended in a 7-7 tie but in the second quarter New Oxford moved out in front 22-10 and went on to win handily. J. Miller netted 18 tallies for the winners while Lantz landed 16 for the Canberrans.

It has been announced the Biglerville boys' and girls' teams will meet the alumni cagers in their annual games next Saturday evening in the new Musselman Memorial gymnasium.

GOP Senators Seek To Block T-H Repeal

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Republican Senators Taft of Ohio and Ives of New York today charted strategy to block the drive for outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley law.

The goal of the GOP team, as outlined by Ives, is to trim from the law certain features most objectionable to its administration foes, as well as some backers. President Truman has asked Congress to replace Taft-Hartley with an "improved" Wagner act—the labor relations law passed in 1937.

Ives told reporters that he suggested to Taft, a co-author of the controversial measure now on the books, that their starting point be a bill which the Senate Labor committee approved 11 to 2 in 1947.

Ives said Taft "raised no objection."

JACKIE TO PLAY AS BOSS ORDERS

Atlanta, Jan. 15 (AP)—Jackie Robinson, the negro second baseman, says he will play baseball where the Brooklyn Dodgers tell him, despite Ku Klux Klan opposition.

That was his reaction last night after the Klan questioned whether he and Dodger Catcher Roy Campanella, also a negro, would legally play against the Atlanta Crackers.

The Dodgers meet the Southern Association Crackers here April 8, 9 and 10 in exhibition games. Cracker President Earl Mann said he expected both Robinson and Campanella to be in the line-up.

Klan Dragon Samuel Green immediately came up with a challenge that Georgia's segregation laws would bar the negroes against a white team in Atlanta. "In my opinion, it's illegal," the Grand Dragon said. "You can bet your life I'll look up the segregation law and investigate thoroughly."

Gov. Herman Talmadge, a "White Supremacy" crusader, said the controversy hadn't been called to his attention officially. He said it probably would be later and would look into it then.

Robinson, in his New York sports broadcast over station WMCA, said: "This is my reaction to the statement about the Ku Klux Klan. I will play baseball where my employer, the Brooklyn Dodgers, wants me to play."

Branch Rickey, the Dodger president, said Robinson would be in all exhibition games, not only those in Georgia, but those in Florida, Texas and the Carolinas as well. Rickey was quoted by the New York Times as saying if some cities ban negro players, "why the Dodgers simply won't play there and that is all there is to that."

Y.S. DRIBBLERS DIVIDE GAMES

York Springs divided a basketball double-header with St. Mary's Catholic high of Hagerstown Friday evening at York Springs, the boys losing a 51-49 decision while the girls triumphed 19-16.

Coach Joe Kennedy's boys trailed during the first half but rallied in the last periods and led 49-47 with a minute and a half remaining. However, a pair of goals by the visitors turned the tide.

Guise was outstanding for York Springs and landed a total of 22 points.

The York Springs girls led 11-5 at half time in their low scoring affair and fought off the rally by the Marylanders in the closing half.

York Springs will be host to the East Berlin boys in a county league game Monday.

Seek Truck Driver For Beating Child

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 15 (AP)—West Scranton police today sought a 28-year-old unemployed truck driver in connection with the serious beating of his eight-year-old daughter.

Police Lieutenant Chester Cimino identified the man as Joseph Ludovici and said he's wanted on a warrant charging aggravated assault and battery.

The youngster, Patricia Ludovici, is in West Side hospital. Cimino said she was lashed on the face, chest, back and legs with a belt and "punched in the stomach."

It is estimated that Americans read 400 million books a year.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Jan. 15 (AP)—The "success" of the NCAA system code, as re-affirmed at the recent San Francisco meeting, has started a big argument at one southern college we've just heard from. . . .

The school's governing body is about to plot its future course. Our informant explains: "Some want us to line up 100 per cent with the NCAA; others want us to set up a 'Wahoo Educational Fund' (like some rival colleges) in hopes of luring good football players here. . . . The trick, as explained by another sharp observer, seems to be to set up such a fund, administered by regular university authorities and open to all students. You can always drop a word in someone's ear and even a faculty man can get the idea that such funds won't be forthcoming for long if deserving football prospects aren't taken care of. . . . That's a very practical kind of "sanity" and strictly within the rules."

GO-GETTER

The National Baseball Congress recently received an application from Loretto, Kansas (population 30) to conduct one of the 500 NBC-sanctioned district tournaments. Officials at Wichita figured the village was too small for such an event. A reply was sent to Ben Stremel, a wealthy wheat farmer who made the application, explaining a sanction couldn't be issued because there was no lighted field in such a small town. . . . Almost by return mail came the word that Stremel was constructing a lighted field—so Loretto will be the smallest town ever to stage such a tourney.

SPORTSPOURRI

Word from Washington is that the Redskins, despairing of making a deal with Frank Leahy, offered their coaching job to Georgia's Wally Butts, who said he's given them an answer some time after January 20. . . .

QUOTE, UNQUOTE

Lightweight Champ Ike Williams (at the boxing writers' dinner): "A few years ago I said I wouldn't want my son to be a boxer. Now the answer would be yes. I'd want him to be one because the things I got and the people I met through boxing are the best in the world."

TROPHY FOR MUSIAL

Harrisburg, Jan. 15 (AP)—Stan Musial, of Donora, recently voted the most valuable player in the National League, will be awarded a special trophy by the Harrisburg Sportswriters association at a dinner here January 26. The association said the award, to be presented by Gov. James H. Duff, will be emblematic of "the most outstanding Pennsylvania athlete of 1948."

Says Dutch Troops Must Go Quickly

Lake Success, Jan. 15 (AP)—An Indonesian spokesman said today there never will be real peace in the islands unless Dutch soldiers are withdrawn quickly from Indonesian territory. By quickly, this spokesman said, he means within a week.

Indonesian and Netherlands representatives are studying a rough plan for a settlement reported drawn up by the United States and backed by China, Norway and Egypt so far.

The plan was said to have been examined with interest by British delegates late yesterday while the Security Council heard another round of speeches in the Indonesian case. The council adjourned until 3 p. m. (EST) Monday, with no indication whether a resolution would be placed before it at that time.

STATE REPORTS ON KILLS FOR GAME SEASONS

Harrisburg, Jan. 15 (AP)—Pennsylvania hunters shot less rabbits, bear and deer in 1948 than the year previous, the State Game Commission reported today.

The only kill increases for the season, the commission said in a survey report, were for wild turkeys, ringneck pheasants, raccoons, woodchucks, waterfowl and woodcocks.

The season took a toll of 23 lives in hunting accidents, with another 428 persons injured. The 1947 fatality rate was 29 dead and 426 injured.

The commission meanwhile expressed concern over what it termed the "wanton slaughter" of illegal game. More than 4,500 deer and 90 bear cubs were estimated killed illegally.

Incomplete figures for the big game season showed a total of 381 bears killed during the five-day bear season last November. The 1947 kill of 569 established a six-year record.

The 1948 deer kill totaled about 30,000 bucks during the two-week season compared with 31,475 in 1947.

The commission said deer hunting in wooded sections adjacent to

Littlestown

Littlestown — Commander Clarence J. Krichen, Sr., was in charge of the semi-monthly meeting of the Ocker Snyder Post No. 321, American Legion, in the post home, East King street, Thursday evening. He expressed appreciation to the House committee, Wayne Arnold, chairman, for their efforts in making the New Year's party a success. Four new members were received. They were Dale W. Stary, Robert C. French, Lawrence H. Dooley and Eugene V. Snyder. Announcement was made of the receipt of a cash donation from Mr. and Mrs. Claude A. Snyder, Crouse Park, parents of Glenn Allen Snyder, first Littlestown boy killed in World War II. The post which was formally named, John W. Ocker post, was changed to Ocker-Snyder post in his memory. Technicians from the Warner farming areas produced a larger kill than previously. It added this was an indication of scarcity of food in their natural habitats.

The small game kill for 1948. Cottontail rabbits, 1,791,550 (1947—829,843); squirrels, 504,875 (1947—658,787); wild turkeys—4,318 (1947—3,751); ringneck pheasants, 277,254 (1947—220,814); raccoons, 98,242 (1947—91,912); ruffed grouse, 24,297 (1947—29,922); bobwhite quail, 5,700 (1947—8,360); woodcock, 26,210 (1947—20,263); waterfowl, 40,352 (1947—35,914); woodchucks, 259,534 (1947—234,917).

hospital will again be at the post home, Thursday, January 27, to type blood for the blood donor list. The post officers feel that the list isn't complete and urge all people of the vicinity to take advantage of "this opportunity to be able to help themselves and their neighbors." James Fager and Ralph Ruggles were appointed a committee to arrange for the Legion birthday party in March. The date will be announced when plans are completed. The next meeting of the post will be held Thursday, January 27.

Mrs. Paul E. King was elected president of the Alta Hummer Missionary society of St. John's Lutheran church at the monthly meeting of the organization held on Thursday evening following the preaching mission service at the home of Mrs. Sylvester Rieckrode, near town. Other officers elected were: Mrs. Edgar Wolfe, vice president; Mrs. Samuel Renner, secretary; and Mrs. Luther Myers, treasurer. Miss Evelyn Asper, Mrs. Harry O. Harner, Mrs. Raymond Rineman and Mrs. Malcolm Heiser comprised the nominating committee that presented the slate of officers. The business session was preceded by a devotional service in which Miss Evelyn Asper, the leader for the evening read Psalm 33. A poem, "A Wee Lamb," was read by Mrs. Paul E. King and a poem, "Christmas Legends" was read by Mrs. Leonard Kerchner. The pastor, the Rev. Kenneth D. James, offered prayer. "How Christmas Is America," was the topic of the evening which was discussed by the group. The closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Kenneth D. James after which Miss Asper conducted the magazine quiz. Mrs. Leonard Kerchner, retiring president conducted the business session and Mrs. Preston Myers presented the secretary's report. There were 17 members in attendance. It was decided that for the year 1949, the magazine, "The Lutheran Woman's Work" will be ordered individually instead of by a group subscription. A communication was received from Miss Jean Thomas, Biglerville, president of the Adams District Missionary society asking for the appointment of one member from the local society to serve on a committee that will plan for the spring convention of the Adams District to be held at Fairfield. A card was received from the secretary of the Administrative committee of Lutheran World Relief, acknowledging receipt of the four packages contributed by the society for overseas relief. Mrs. Kathryn Hull also read a letter which she received from Germany expressing thanks for clothing which she had sent. The next meeting of the society will be held February 10, at the home of Mrs. Leonard Kerchner, Lumber street, when Mrs. Paul Bowers will be the leader.

The George L. Shetter property consisting of his home, his recreation center and Evelyn Eisenhart's beauty shop, has been repainted.

Visitors to town during the week were Charles Sipe and son, Raymond, who are in this area from Blanding, Utah, visiting at the homes of numerous relatives.

Mrs. Verne Y. Brandt, who had been seriously ill for several weeks before Christmas, was able on Sunday to attend a service at her church for the first time since her illness.

The local Girl scouts have elected these officers for 1949: President, Peggy J. Mummert; vice president, Lucy V. Sell; secretary, Doris Ann Fitzkee; and treasurer, Shirley Spangler. The girls are now using their new headquarters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy E. Elshart.
